

ANALYSIS BRIEF

UNSCR 1325 CONVENING EVENT

4 SEPTEMBER 2025

DESIGN

This study employed a quantitative pre- and post-assessment survey design to measure changes in the levels of awareness and everyday relevance of UNSCR 1325 among targeted Rwandan women and men through innovative sport-for-peace activities. The survey instrument employed Likert-scale questions, to specifically measure the following objectives;

- Assess the levels of knowledge on UNSCR 1325 and its four pillars.
- Assess the levels of understanding of the everyday relevance of UNSCR 1325.
- Increase knowledge on the resolution and its relevance in everyday life.

INSTRUMENT

The survey consisted of six questions, with three questions appearing in both the pre- and post-assessments.

These 6 questions were categorised as follows:

- 3 Likert-scale questions, each utilising a 5-point rating scale
- 1 Likert-scale questions, each utilising a 4-point rating scale
- 2 open-ended questions

SCORING AND QUANTIFICATION

Participant responses were translated into numerical values according to the respective scales.

The scoring system allowed for a maximum of 225 points for three Likert-scale questions using a 5-point rating scale, and 180 points for one Likert-scale question using a 4-point rating scale.

- To standardise the scores, an average percentage was calculated using a standardised formula.
- To evaluate the impact of the event, the change in average percentage scores from the pre-assessment to the post-assessment was calculated using a standardised formula.

The applicable formulae were applied to each question to determine whether perceptions improved (positive %) or declined (negative %).

Current ability in using innovative ways to raise awareness about 1325

Level of importance of 1325 is in everyday life

PERCENTAGE CHANGE

EVENT SATISFACTION LEVEL

93.6%

Findings show high awareness (85.05%) and strong self-assessed ability (84.33%) among respondents to promote UNSCR 1325, but a lower perception of its everyday importance (76.07%). This suggests that while knowledge and capacity are strong, greater emphasis is needed on demonstrating the practical relevance of 1325 in daily life.

- Awareness and Education: Many respondents plan to educate others (family, colleagues, and community members) about the four pillars of UNSCR 1325 through dialogues, sensitisation, and awareness campaigns.
- Advocacy and Ambassadorship: Several participants expressed readiness to act as ambassadors for 1325 by raising women's voices, promoting gender equality, and advocating against gender-based violence (GBV).
- Practical Application: Some responses highlight putting into practice what was learned, such as reporting cases of abuse, supporting women's rights, and ensuring personal and community security.
- Inclusion and Social Change: Participants emphasised social inclusion, collaboration between men and women, and engaging marginalised groups (including people with disabilities).

KEY THEMES ON WHAT PARTICIPANTS WILL DO DIFFERENTLY TO PROMOTE AND PRACTICE 1325

SUGGESTIONS TO IMPROVE FUTURE SESSIONS

- Session Logistics: Participants suggested more time for sessions, increased days, and punctuality in scheduling.
- Broader Outreach: Extend trainings to rural areas and involve more participants to widen impact.
- Materials and Resources: Provision of training materials, badges, and follow-up tools to reinforce learning and help participants share knowledge.
- Sports and Interactive Learning: Many highlighted the value of sports and games as tools for engagement, understanding, and conflict resolution/transformation, recommending their expansion in future sessions.
- Practical Focus: Requests for sessions on family governing law, women's property rights, and GBV prevention indicate a demand for practical, real-life applications of 1325.
- Sustainability: Calls for regular, continuous trainings and follow-up suggest participants see value but want consistent engagement rather than one-off events.
